This online syllabus should be used to gain a better understanding of the content and focus of a course. The syllabus given out in the class may differ from this online version and its content supersedes that of the online syllabus.

Course Description

This course is an introductory survey of Islam. It will cover a range of topics including the early history of the religion, its beliefs, practices, ethics, and spirituality. It will pay particular attention to Islam and Christian-Muslim relations in the United States.

Course Objectives

- Students will become familiar with a variety of sources, names, and authors relevant to the various branches of the study of Islam
- Students will gain a familiarity with a broad spectrum of Islamic terminology and deepen their insight into various aspects of Islam
- This course will help students to participate meaningfully and constructively in multi-cultural and interfaith conversations and learning

Course Requirements

Students are expected to attend all class sessions, read all the assigned materials, and participate in class discussions. Assignments are as follows:

1. Class attendance, preparation and participation – 25% of final grade
2. Pre-class reading and a review: Marston Speight's God is One: The Way of Islam, read and bring a 2 page review of the book to the first meeting of the class – 15% of final grade
3. A presentation based on one of the assigned reading materials – 10% of final grade
4. A final research paper, 10-15 pages, relevant to the topics covered in the class, details to be worked out between student and instructor – 50% of final grade

Required Texts:

R. Marston Speight, God is One: The Way of Islam. Second Edition with Afterword and Study Guide. New York: Friendship Press, 2001

Academic Honesty:

All work turned in to the instructors is expected to be the work of the student whose name appears on the assignment. Any borrowing of the ideas or the words of others must be acknowledged by quotation marks (where appropriate) and by citation of author and source. Students unfamiliar with issues relating to academic honesty can find help from the staff in the Academic Support Center and should make use of the available resources at an early date, since violations of seminary policy on academic honesty can lead to a failing grade for the course.

Inclusive Language:

The use of inclusive language in course work is a policy of Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. Direct quotations from theological texts and scriptural translations do not have to be altered to conform to this policy. In your own writing, however, avoid language for people that leaves out part of the population or perpetuates stereotypes. Do not assume masculine gender when the gender of the person is unknown. When referring to God, you are encouraged to use a variety of images and metaphors.
